

Orientation Programme for teachers ended at Gyan Ganga International School, Jabalpur

Jabalpur 25.06.2016.

Quality of the teacher, their capabilities and the teaching approach become all the more vital especially when the students are from various families and are first generation school goers. There is need for creating an enabling environment where not only the children, but also their parents, come to realize and appreciate the need for education. Teachers, being the first interface, need to be more versatile than merely being academic experts. They need to be prime movers, motivating favorably about value of education in shaping individuals life and future. In this context Gyan Ganga International School, Jabalpur conducted an orientation programme for the teachers.

On the second day of the programme, the session was conducted in two different phases. In the first phase teachers shared their experiences of their previous years and suggested ideas for bringing better teaching and learning environment. During the second phase of the programme a workshop was conducted on "Effecting teaching and learning".

The workshop was commenced by welcoming of the invited resource person Mr. Deepak Kumar Nanda, an educator, trainer from corporate world. In this energetic workshop Mr. Nanda told that teachers are not lacking any where instead they have to adopt new styles and methods of teaching. During the session many videos were shown which were informative. He further said teachers should be friendly with the students because they do not learn from the person whom they do not like. He said that today's students are Net-generation so teachers should have in-depth knowledge in their field and able to use technology effectively. Various quizzes, activities and games were conducted which are full of fun. It was an interesting interactive session which aimed at empowering teachers with innovative methods of teaching in classrooms which was a great learning experience. The workshop ended with the famous song from the movie 'Iqbal' ..Aashaaien...

The programme was concluded with the vote of thanks given by Mr. Aditya Singh Sengar followed by presentation of the memento by the school Principal Dr. Rajesh Kumar Chandel.
